

U.S. Evangelicalism in a Global Age / 840:593
Evangelicalism in the U.S. / 840:316
M | 10:55 – 1:55
LOR-131

*Please note: There are additional requirements for students taking the course for graduate-level credit. These extra assignments/meetings will focus in particular on the relationship between U.S. evangelicalism and powerful globalizing forces: How has American evangelicalism changed in an era increasingly defined by transnational forces and global flows? To what degree and in what ways have U.S. evangelicals exported their distinctive brand of religiosity? How have U.S. evangelicalism responded to “religious imports” (evangelical and otherwise) from abroad? What types of debates have shaped scholarly discourse regarding the evolution of U.S. evangelicalism in a global age?

Course Description: This course will explore key developments within contemporary American evangelicalism, focusing especially on evangelicals’ varied responses to major political, economic, social, and cultural trends in the United States during the twentieth and early twenty-first century. How have evangelicals positioned themselves in relation to scientific and technological advances? How have they navigated the increasing consumeristic and therapeutic bent within American culture? How have evangelicals responded to the growing pluralism within U.S. society and to various twentieth-century, early twenty-first century intellectual trends? In what ways have issues of race, gender, sexuality, education, economic status, and political affiliation shaped evangelical identity? In answering questions such as these, this course aims to illuminate both the diversity of the evangelical movement as well as its relationship to American culture during the twentieth and early twenty-first centuries.

Course Objectives:

This course seeks to encourage critical thinking about the nature of contemporary evangelicalism in the U.S. After taking this course, students should:

- gain a broad outline of the major figures and events in the history of evangelicalism in the United States during the twentieth and early twenty-first centuries.
- become familiar with the diversity of American evangelicalism.
- be introduced to some basic theoretical approaches to the academic study of religion and their import for the study of evangelicalism.
- produce an original research paper based on both primary and secondary sources exploring the impact of historical trends discussed in class on evangelicalism in the United States

*In addition to the regularly assigned readings, M.A. students should also read the selections listed under "Further Reading." We will discuss these selections at specially scheduled meetings for those of you taking the course for graduate credit.

Course Requirements:

Essay: You will be required to write one main essay (15-17 pages/at least 3750 words) that focuses on particular aspect of twentieth-century, early twenty-first century evangelicalism in the U.S. There will be a research component (you will need to utilize both primary and secondary sources). I will provide more specific guidelines in class, but you should be aware of the following:

General Requirements for the Essay: Papers turned in after class has started on the final due date will be considered late and lose 5%. Papers turned in after class is over will lose 15%. No papers will be accepted if they are turned in more than one class period after the due date unless arrangements have been made with the instructor. In addition to the hard copy of your paper turned in during class, you should also submit your paper to Turnitin.com via Sakai on the due date of the paper. *Please note, your paper is not officially turned in until I have a hard copy of the paper. You will also lose 10% off your paper if you do not submit it electronically via Sakai on the due date. Email submissions will not be accepted.

Peer-review process: *Students taking the course for graduate credit are not required to participate in the peer-review process.

*Plagiarism and cheating will be handled in accordance with university policy. See <http://academicintegrity.rutgers.edu/integrity.shtml#plagiarism>

Mid-Term and Final: There will be an in-class mid-term, and a final exam given during the scheduled final exam period. The format of the exams will include multiple choice, short-answer, and mini-essay responses.

Quizzes: There will be unannounced quizzes throughout the semester based on the course readings. Readings should be read by the date they are listed on the syllabus. Anyone who has read the assigned pages should have no problem answering the questions. One quiz score may be dropped and will not count towards the final grade (this includes a missed quiz). Make-up quizzes will only be allowed for excused absences approved by me beforehand (for funerals, heart bypass surgeries, et cetera). *It is your responsibility to make sure you have read the material by the due date. Problems downloading the online readings will not excuse you from taking a quiz.

Attendance & Participation: Attendance is expected at all classes, and will be taken into account in your participation grade. If you expect to miss class, please use the University absence reporting website <https://sims.rutgers.edu/ssra/> to indicate the date and reason for your absence. An email is automatically sent to me.
